

Do not eliminate or change the ownership regulations you are considering revising or eliminating. The internet, magazines, books, newspapers, and the like can not compete with the power of television so you need to keep the rules regulating media ownership so that we can promote the broadest range of information.